

Platelet IP6K1 regulates neutrophil extracellular trap–microparticle complex formation in acute pancreatitis

Raeh Madhi, ... , Matthias Mörgelon, Henrik Thorlacius

JCI Insight. 2021;6(4):e148169. <https://doi.org/10.1172/jci.insight.148169>.

Retraction

Original citation: JCI Insight. 2019;4(21):e129270. <https://doi.org/10.1172/jci.insight.129270> Citation for this retraction: JCI Insight. 2021;6(4):e148169. <https://doi.org/10.1172/jci.insight.148169> Following a review by the Swedish National Board for Assessment of Research Misconduct, it was determined that a serious breach of good scientific practice in the form of falsification occurred during the pseudocoloring of scanning electron micrographs in this article. The National Board determined that the serious deviation from good research practice was not intentionally committed and concluded that no research misconduct occurred. The paper is being retracted because JCI Insight editorial policy prohibits falsification and misrepresentation of data.

Find the latest version:

<https://jci.me/148169/pdf>

Retraction

Platelet IP6K1 regulates neutrophil extracellular trap–microparticle complex formation in acute pancreatitis

Raeh Madhi, Milladur Rahman, Dler Taha, Johan Linders, Mohammed Merza, Yongzhi Wang, Matthias Mörgelon, and Henrik Thorlacius

Original citation: JCI Insight. 2019;4(21):e129270. <https://doi.org/10.1172/jci.insight.129270>.

Citation for this retraction: JCI Insight. 2021;6(4):e148169. <https://doi.org/10.1172/jci.insight.148169>.

Following a review by the Swedish National Board for Assessment of Research Misconduct, it was determined that a serious breach of good scientific practice in the form of falsification occurred during the pseudocoloring of scanning electron micrographs in this article. The National Board determined that the serious deviation from good research practice was not intentionally committed and concluded that no research misconduct occurred. The paper is being retracted because JCI Insight editorial policy prohibits falsification and misrepresentation of data.